Dr. Maloney is the associate chief of the emergency department at the Cleveland VA Medical Center. In addition to emergency medicine, he is also a certified professional in patient safety (CPPS) and healthcare quality (CPHQ). He has developed sepsis triage protocols and order sets to meet the CMS Quality Measures and has spearheaded initiatives that have led to a significant increase in the early detection and management of sepsis at his facility. He is an US Army veteran and holds a faculty appointment at Case Western Reserve University as an associate professor of emergency medicine.
